HONGKONG, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1890.

KOREA AND HER FUTURE.

THERE is no necessity for either the Daily Press or the Peking correspondent of the Times to jump to rash conclusions respecting Russian designs upon the Korean peninsula. The settlement of the question does not rest with China by any means, at all events so long as Great Britain remains, what she now is; the leading Power of Anti-spasmodic. This reliable remedy has long | the world. It is perfectly true, however, as the Times puts it, that "the agents of Russia are exceedingly active in the peninsula, and are effectively supported by a number of Americans, missionaries Sydney performance of "Paul Jones," while that and others, who have the ear of the King and flatter him with visions of independence." There was a time, and not so very long ago, when a virtually independent Korea, under the guarantee of the treaty Powers, was a feasible solution of the difficult problem presented by the vexed relations between Korea and China and the Powers with whom the first named country has concluded treaties of amity and commerce. But, mirabile diclu, nothing has stood more in the way of that muchto-be-desired solution of a very grave question than the suicidal policy pursued by China towards her unfortunate so-called vassal. The neutrality of the kingdom should, as many admit, be guaranteed by all the treaty Powers, and China, instead of holding back, should be the very first to take the initiative in such an important political reform. By so doing the Peking Government would be adopting a dignified course which, while tending to prove her earnest desire for the welfare of her neighbour and late vassal, would effectually checkmate Russia's well-known aggressive designs in that small, yet coveted, land. As Korea stands at present she is helpless for herself and a danger to other nations, but chiefly to British interests, and such being the case, the policy pursued by Russia there, with the aid of such complacent patriots as Judge DENNY, General DYE and Dr. H. N. ALLEN, is rapidly becoming positively dangerous. That Korea has received positive assurances of Russian, Japanese and American co-operation in the coming struggle to throw off the Chinese yoke can, in the light of recent revelations, hardly be doubted, and in point of fact we happen to be in possession of important information and secret correspondence on the subject which in due course will be published in these columns. The situation is certainly grave enough at present; Russia's designs are understood by those who have the best right to view her movements with deep suspicions, and the sooner the necessary steps are taken to stop the never ceasing intrigues of this persistent enemy of British progress in the East, the better it will be for all who have important commercial interests at stake in the event of a sudden outbreak of war in Eastern seas. That Russia will not be allowed to occupy any part of Korea unchallenged by Great Britain should be clear enough by the tenor of the terms under which we relinquished our hold on Port Hamilton in 1887. We did so under the guarantee of China that "no part of Korea, including 1.50 | Port Hamilton, shall be occupied by any foreign Power." If China is not in a 2.00 position to maintain that guarantee in its entirety, then England will have to take up the cudgels for her oriental ally-and Russia knows this. Should the alternative ! be forced on her, there is not the remotest doubt that Great Britain will not hesitate and Japanese pretensions. LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A.TRIAL has been made at Civita Vecchia of a nautical ball invented by Signor' Baisamello. It is seven feet in diameter and can hold four persons. When closed it sinks, and is steered and propelled under water by rudder and screw. It has windows and grapplers, and, besides fishing up things, it may be used for destructive purposes in time of war.

JUSTICE is blind. Also it is crippled and imbecile and dead, an in an advanced state of putrefaction as well. Here is evidence to that effect. At Carlton, Victoria, the other day a man who two shopkeepers and ferociously assaulted and kicked a small boy in the street got ten weeks' imprisonment. Then a tottering old patriach who had gone off with a jug worth one shilling was brought along, and sentenced to three months'. Of such is the kingdom of

THE three pig-pirates, who upon leaving the Supreme Court yesterday were re-arrested on extradition warrants, were before Mr. Wodehouse at the Police Court to-day. They begged his Worship to deal with the case himself, as they were arrested in British, and not in Chinese territory. In view of the fact that the Chinese authorities were not represented the magistrate remanded the case until Thursday next, after which date the prisoners would, he said, be liberated if some representative of the Canton Government did not then appear to press the application for their rendition.

MACAO boasts as many journals as colonels The latest is O Correio, which has broken the record by attaining its fourteenth issue and still surviving. Our first acquaintance with this literary postage-stamp began to-day, when we perused a subsidised article directed against the expose by the Hongkong Telegraph of the renewal of the infamous coolie traffic between the City of Anchories and South America. The writer's chief argument is that Hongkorg owes its tranquility and freedom from pirates to the suppression of piracy by the Macao government. We admit it. The pirates all live in Macao now.

An invention has been perfected in the glass industry which, it is stated, will accomplish complete revolution in that branch of manufacture. Until the present it has only been possible to produce sheet-glass, by blowing a hollow cylinder, which was then cut, separated, and polished. An American glass manufacturer has now succeeded in producing glass plates great breadth and of any desired length means of rolling. Glass thus produced is said to possess a far greater homogeneity, firmness, and transparency; and it has on the upper surface a brilliancy which is hardly to be distinguished from art plate glass.

Ar the meeting of the Sanitary Board this afternoon the Secretary read a minute by Mi Francis on the report by the Sanitary Superintendent re the Chinese bakeries of Hongkong. in which it was pointed out that the report was very deficient and nothing definite could be drawn from it. It was seconded by Mr. Ede and carried unanimously.

At first i was supposed that the girl had committed suicide by taking poison, but a post-mortem examination showed that she died from failure of the heart's action, due to tight lacing. The liver of the unfortunate young woman was horribly deformed and crushed out of shape. Professor Virchow, at a lecture which he recently gave in Berlin on "Diseases of the Liver," stated that half the cases of diseases of the liver in women were brought about by tight lacing.

The total list of deaths by cyclones, lightning and wind-storms alone since January 1st will figure up over 1,000, as compared with only 163 deaths by the same causes all last year. Though the year is only three-quarters over, it promises to be memorable for its dreadful catastrophes.

Foochow Echo. THUS the Sydney Bulletin:-The dignity of a lawyer is larger than the mammoth. A little while ago one Gardiner turned up in the cock at Benalla (Vic.) and incautiously trod on the tremendous majesty of this overwhelming being. There was no barrister in Benalla, for that little one-horse town can't support that ravening animal: and Gardiner was too poor to hire a guy dressed in horsehair and bed-furniture from Melbourne and pay his fee and his travelling expenses, and then have the pleasure ofgoing to gaol because his advocate hadn't even looked at the case and wasn't there into the bargain. Accordingly asked the Court, in the usual way, to permit solicitor to appear for him, and the enquired whether that lofty and refulgent being. the Crown Prosecutor, would stoop from his elevated sphere to meet an ordinary low, cheap. common soliciter, and the Crown Prosecutor rose with carnage in his eye, and refused to associate with the ignominious branch of the profession. Consequently Gardiner was hauled away to wait till next assizes, and if he can't hire a barrister when that time comes he will probably be again remanded, or else he will have to do without a defence of any kind. But it is better that an inconsiderable human being, without any capital worth speaking of, should go to gaol undefended than that a shining barrister should be tarnished. and interfered with, and contradicted, by a mere grovelling solicitor who never owned a misfit wig in his life or fell over the tails of that extraordinary garment which makes the exponent of the law look like a sack of potatoes in disguise.

THE Empress of Germany is said to be a young woman of exceeding fiery temper. She was a Schleswig-Holstein Princess, and was reared with strict severity—is a thorough housekeeper, as well as a preficient scho'ar. But amiabillity is not her most notable characteristic. Of course she cannot quarrel with her husband, for the etiquette of the Court is distinctly rigorous; but the Empress is at liberty to quarrel with everybody else, and of this prerogative the young woman avails herself. Some of her outbursts of temper have been of a most humiliating character, betraying a coarseness one would hardly expect to meet with in royalty. The Empress is inclined: to stoutness; her features are rather heavy, but the expression of her face is kindly. She is one year older than her husband. "COUNT" POPOW IN SHANGHAI

The public career of the notorious "Count" Popow is again temporarily interrupted, and the community of Shanghai are to be congratulated that he is now behind the bars of a cell at the Central Police Station, as he was arrested by the Police at 10 s.m. on Saturday last. Popow/arrived at Shanghai in the Taisang under the name of C. Keller, and soon set about making preparations to open his campaign. He is a linguist speaks eleven languages, conversing fluently in any one of them, and, the N. C. Daily News admits, has a very plausible way with him, so that when he comes forward with some kind of tale, it is narrated in such a way that the listener's suspicions, if he has any, as to the bona fides of the speaker are lulled. Popow, however, has not done much mischief here so far, although he attempted to work on a grand scale, giving out that he was a Russian and stating that he had been employed by the Russian government surveying on the borders of India, and that for four years he had been an agent of the Russian secret police, but that the Russians were bad paymasters and owed him eleven months' pay which he would receive shortly. He also said he had an inheritance of 11,000 roubles in the hands of a Singapore firm, who were only holding them for him till he could get better rate of exchange. He called up:n foreign photographer and asked if he required an assistant. Being informed that he did not Popow, after some conversation, left. Next day he returned and said he had altered his mind he did not want to be an assistant, but wanted to purchase a place for himself, and that he was expecting 11,000 roubles from the south, and the foreigner was willing to sell the place, would purchase it He was willing. Popow then went to one of the banks and asked to see the manager. Being shown in, he asked if the bank had any advice of some money coming to him. as he was expecting a remittance. He explained to the banker that he was going to buy out a photographic establishment with the money he was expecting. The banker had received no advices of the money in question, but of course, it would be all right when it came. Popow in his conversation with the photographer had told him about his visit to the bank, apparently with the intention of putting him off his guard, but the photographer did not pay much attention to what he said, and it was only on going to the bank on business, that he heard that Popow had been" there too and informed the manager that he was going to buy him (the photographer) out. Popow did not make any signs of paying for the. business, so the negotiations fell through, but he made use of a letter the photographer had and have, on the hody social and political, and written him to get a suit of clethes and is computed that at the opening of the present sion of his countenance, says a Sydney Bulletin other things out of a Chinese tailor, whom spirituous liquor has on the individual consumer. century there were about 21,000,000 who spoke | critic, that he had expected a smaller sentence. | he persuaded that the letter was a guarantee | They have, acting in their sphere, quickened the the English tongue. SHANGHAL TRAINING NOTES.

Saturday last was the first morning of the training that anything of much consequence has been going on. One of the first to appear was Home Guard with Mr. Read up, who went a mile and a half alone. The time, 36, 1' 12', 1'51', 2' 30' and 3' 381', was slow, but the pony was going well. wi hin himself until the distance, when he was hustled up a bit. Normont went 11 miles, Mr. Read up, in 2' 561', last quarter 321 sec., which may be considered a very good performance.

Mamay, the Hankow Champions' winner, with the same rider up covered the same distance in 3' 2'. The time was nothing, but the pony finished well; however he will have to limber up if he is going to stretch the necks of the Shanghai cracks.

A grey griffin from the Ewo Stable had the legs of Leap Year in a mile and quarter gallop in 3 min 7 sec., last quarter 37 sec.

Dunkeld, with Mr. Hutchings in the saddle, went for a steady mile, starting very slowly. He finished well, however, being hard held for the last quarter in 34 sec.

Earlstoun, owner up, went for a steady gallop : there is a lot of room for improvement here before race day.

Silken Mead, boy up, we saw finishing, but were not impressed by his style. Vacrant, Mr. Hart Buck, and Vaticinator. Mr. Crawford, went for a mile in 2m. 22sec. the former galloping all round last meeting's Champions' winner at the finish. Vagrant has either come on amazingly since last meeting or the gallop was not Vaticinator's form.

A crowd of griffins from Mr. Sassoon's stable went for 11 miles, a dark grey winning the pow

Three more griffins from the same stable went the same distance, a kept-over grey winning in 2m. 52 sec. This was by far the best griffins! performance of the morning.

Vengeance, owner up, went 11 miles very slowly and finished with lots in hand.

Wild Mint, wi'h a'postage stamp in the saddle. was sent 12 miles. He covered the distance in 2m. 49 seo, last quarter 33 sec., which was an excellent performance so far as speed went and his owner looked very much pleased, but we have seen this pony do sensational gallops in training before, so do not place much reliance on him.

Volcano, Mr. Hart Buck, was beaten by Visitation, Mr. Crawford, in a mile gallop. The time 2m. 25sec. was nothing, but the way the latter pony shot out when called upon reminded us of the clever way in which he won the Chau Shang Kiuk cup a year ago.

Skipjick, boy up, went a mile in 2m. 22sec. by himself. Paoshing, boy up, went the same distance and was blowing very much at the finish; we heard his trainer remark that the pony's lungs were gone; others do not think so though, but are inclined to the opinion that with work he will come round. Encounter, owner up, went a mile in 2m.

18} sec., but spoilt the effect of what would have been a very good gallop, by refusing to extend himself passing the Rails.

A chestnut griffin, Mr. Hough, with a grey ridden by a boy from the Ewo stable went a mile in 2m. 27sec. The chestnut had a lot in hand at the finish, but we were not impressed by the form of either.

Hornet, Mr. Hough, had the legs of a Cream, boy up, in a 12 mile gallop, time 3m. rosec. Three recent purchases from Mr. Humphreys' stable were galloped ? mile., a chestnut with rather suspicious forelegs winning in Im. 42sec. Visitant went by himself for the same distance in 1m, 41sec, finishing very well. The Ewo old st gers, viz:-Orlando, Golden Hope, Duncraggan, Challenger and Gerald, were confined to trotting exercise. We did not notice any of Mr. Sassoon's old ponies on the course, being reported in physic; they have been absent now for a long time.

The Trial Stakes was run at 7.50, after which some trained griffins were brought out to be galloped against time, one, a bay, did ? mile in ' 344", another bay did 3' 24" for 11 miles, and a big chestnut covered the same distance in 31 We have not yet heard whether any of hem found purchasers, but owing to the great scarcity of good ponies this year they will doubtess command high prices.

The course was good going but in the carly morning was very holding, which would account for the slow times made; however is had dried up considerably by the time the Trial Stakes was run .- N. C. Daily News.

LIQUOR AND LAW.

Teetotallers have waged so able and persistent a crusade against the State sanction of the traffic in alcoholic drinks, that the question involved ranks to-day among those which constitute the first concern of national politics. In the old world and the new the question has commanded and commands urgent attention, while here in Australia it is vital, vigorous, and exacting of serious consideration. These facts are creditable to the pugnacity, perseverance, and argumentative capacity of water-propagandists generally There is merit in the cause itself, it is true and so much merit that if every water-drinker in civil sation had been stricken dumb twenty years ago a host of minds would be to-day scriously engaged on the problem. But, notwithstanding, without tectotal enthusiasm, tectotal arguments. and the contumacious perseverance of the disciplined and undisciplined battalions of the water cult, the popular mind and the general political mind would still look upon proposals to wholly suppress intoxicants by legislation as the fanciful tilts of vino phobiac Quixotes astride of granite-fountain Rosinantes.

In reality, aggressive tectotallers have had, analogous irfluence and effect to those which was a Russian, and to another that he was an . The conscience of the world was not yet alive Spanish by 40,000,000, the Russian by 70,000,000, but that officer presently returned and stated that American, but neither will recognise him. No haggard mothers of himself up, to do so to the Police. The ever starved and stunted children met the game vigilint Jones was handy, having dogged Amund the sparkling juice of the grape lay an Popow's footstors, and arrested him on a criminal atmosphere in which only prismatic lines of joy charge and took him to the Central Police and good-fellowship were discernible. This Station. He appears to have received $20 from atmosphere aggressive tectotallers pierced one person. $15 from another, and some stores dispersed. The coarse crayon of untutored from a Chinese firm, as the result of his efforts; carnestness drew the drunkard as a murderer of wife and children; the pencil and brush of draughtsman and painter limned him as the maker of prupers and material of maniacs. The spectral horrors stalked around the banquetingroom, out into the streets, and crowded the market places. Observat on showed with what terrible frequency these ghastly apportitions were materialised, and as the tectotaller invoked aid the communa mind, excited, inflamed, fell, or came near falling, under his spell.

But just as unlimited subjection to spirituous liquors precipitates the individual into physical drunkenness, so unlimited subjection to this enthusiasm or any enthusiasm precipitates to mental drunkenness. The laws which, under the influence of this new propagands, banished Intoxicants from several of the States of America bear all the characteristics of the products of drunken minds. They were vitiated by suddenness, barbarised by injustice, and stultified by inconsequentiality. A day was enough to set them up; a day was enough in which to knock them down. At one fell swoop they deprived THE Company's Steamship a man of a means of living which, until the tectotallers hung their pictures out, they and he had regarded as honest. They drove nails into the doors of public-houses and rejoiced as victors; but the secret distiller and the chemist carried at o A.M. on the business in private houses; or they swept one ward or town clear of the traffic only to make the contiguous places cess-pools for both. This brings us to our moral: Some tectotaller and some publican is good; too much tectotaller or too much publican is bad. Without the tectotaller the world would, as we have said, be still dull to many of the evils of intemperance; with him as the rider, drunken minds will assume the cure of drunken bodies, and intelligent Terminus. reform be retarded.

leaving the same at this Office, or at No. 1, Drunkenness is no more in wine than is, gluttony in meat. The bibulant is attracted by the wine-cup, the glutton by the steaming joint. The excesses are human acts and to be corrected, not by breaking the wine-cup, not by penalising cooked joints, but by operating on the capacity for restraint which adult human beings, not devoid of reason, must be assumed to possess. The man physically drunk smashes unoffending tables and chairs; the man mentally drunk demands power to smash the unoffending wineglass. Where, once complied with, is this mental inebriety to stop? Shall the vegetarian strive for majority to apply legal prohibition to beef-eating; shall the beef-eater similarly prohibit th vegetarian? Shall the athlete call up a majority to destroy the books of the recluse, and the recluse to burn the implements of the athlete Shall the smoker slay the non-smoker with majority, or the latter the smoker? Men have damaged health by too much ment, by too much vegetables, by too great an addition of sport or study, and by too much tobacco. Of course the evils in these cases are neither so widespread nor intense, save in case of over-cating when viewed by the practised medical eye, but evils do arise under them, and once the principle of prohibiting by law the exercise of an appetite which is mederate because other appetities in the same line are immoderate, is admitted, the duty of morally disciplining the individual ceases in all directions, and the vote of a Parliamentary or other majority must be brought up and put in its place.

The evils arising from sexual passion are more numerous and deadly than all other evils taken together. Love, inordinate, ill-regulated, has filled more charnel-houses than all the red and white wine that ever came from the winepress Under its gaze youth has staggered, dazed to a premature grave, and age has gone blindly to dishonour. Because in many cases love is a road to ruin, because in many cases marriage is a road to fatal strife, who will advocate that love is to be barred off and marriage made impossible? But it is on such a principle that Local Option and Prohibition rest. The right to love, the right to marry, the right to eat, the right to drink-all are inalienable, and only when trespassing upon one another or upon the community they lose their character and become wrongs can the function of Government be properly or profitably brought to bear on them.

The Drink traffic wants reforms, but the reform to be sound, to be lasting, must rest on the maintenance, not on the deprivation, of natura rights. The traffic is dangerous and acts overtly and covertly on the welfare of society. Society invokes, therefore, a power to eliminate from the traffic whatever leads in a direction contrary to the duties of good citizenship. All this it can do, and the traffic will still survive. It can, for instance, increase the license-fees and insist on spacious bars. The first will make the holder of the license regard for feiture with terror, the second will give a semi-public character to the performance of drinking, and many of the insidious practices alleged to be at present current will become thereby impossible. These two reforms will, of themselves, be sufficient to root out the low dens where painted harridans and soaked dupes play with one another's lives. And with this gained public decency and national honour will be safer than after a universal mutilation sanctioned by a majority, ready, for a mere fad, to cut the throat of personal liberty.—Sydney Bulletin.
